

I read a recent news article that stated the FCC's reason for selling the soul of American media to Big Business was due to good old fashion corruption in the form of industry-sponsored trips for FCC employees to places like Paris, London, Las Vegas and Hong Kong.

I urge you to retain current ownership rules and thereby prove you are a government agency in the service of the tax-paying public and not the puppet of special-interest big business who's only interest is in fleecing as much money as they can from any source they can get their hands on.

Big business is not a public service. Have you forgotten that you are? Once again I urge you to put rules in place that serve public not private interests.
